

Examiners' Report Principal Examiner Feedback

November 2021

Pearson Edexcel International GCSE

In English Language A (4EA1)

Paper 02: Poetry and Prose Texts and Imaginative Writing

Edexcel and BTEC Qualifications

Edexcel and BTEC qualifications are awarded by Pearson, the UK's largest awarding body. We provide a wide range of qualifications including academic, vocational, occupational and specific programmes for employers. For further information visit our qualifications websites at www.edexcel.com or www.btec.co.uk. Alternatively, you can get in touch with us using the details on our contact us page at www.edexcel.com/contactus.

Pearson: helping people progress, everywhere

Pearson aspires to be the world's leading learning company. Our aim is to help everyone progress in their lives through education. We believe in every kind of learning, for all kinds of people, wherever they are in the world. We've been involved in education for over 150 years, and by working across 70 countries, in 100 languages, we have built an international reputation for our commitment to high standards and raising achievement through innovation in education. Find out more about how we can help you and your students at: www.pearson.com/uk

November 2021
Publications Code 4EA1_02_2111_ER
All the material in this publication is copyright
© Pearson Education Ltd 2021

Introduction

This report will provide exemplification of candidates' work, together with tips and comments, for Paper 2 of the International GCSE Specification A in English Language. This was the second exceptional November series of the 'A' specification in IGCSE English Language 9-1 following the cancellation of the summer series in 2021.

The specification consists of three components: Unit 1: Non-fiction and Transactional Writing - 60% (examination); Unit 2: Poetry and Prose Texts and Imaginative Writing - 40% (this examination) OR Unit 3: Poetry and Prose Texts and Imaginative Writing - 40% (non-examination assessment). Candidates may also be entered for the optional Spoken Language Endorsement (non-examination assessment).

Unit 2 for Poetry and Prose Texts and Imaginative Writing is assessed through an examination lasting one hour and thirty minutes. The total number of marks available is 60. The reading and writing sections on this paper are loosely linked by the theme of the text from the Anthology which appears on the examination paper.

This focus of this component is:

Section A - Poetry and Prose Texts: study and analyse selections from a range of fictional poetry and prose texts.

Candidates should study the poetry and prose provided in Part 2 of the Pearson Edexcel International GCSE English Anthology in preparation for responding to a given prose extract or poem in the examination.

The specification identifies that candidates:

'should be able to read substantial pieces of writing (extended texts) that make significant demands on them in terms of content, structure and the quality of language. Throughout the qualification, candidates should develop the skills of inference and analysis.'

Candidates are advised to allocate 45 minutes to Section A, and there will be one essay question on a poetry or prose text from Part 2 of the Pearson Edexcel International GCSE English Anthology, which will be made available in a booklet in the examination if it is a longer extract or will be in the Question Paper in the case of a poem.

Candidates will answer the question in this section and 30 marks are available. There are three bullet points to prompt the response and the third bullet always asks candidates to consider language and structure.

Section B - Imaginative Writing: explore and develop imaginative writing skills.

Candidates are advised to allocate 45 minutes to Section B. There are three writing tasks, to some extent linked by theme to the reading prose extract or poem. Candidates pick one question to respond to and the response is worth 30 marks. The format of the tasks remains the same for each series - Question 1 follows the format 'Write about a time when you, or someone you know...', Question 2 follows the format 'Write a story with the title...' and Question 3 offers two images as a prompt for a response which is always 'Write a story that begins...' or 'Write a story that ends...'.

The Assessment Objectives for this paper are:

Section A: Reading

A01:

 read and understand a variety of texts, selecting and interpreting information, ideas and perspectives

AO2:

 understand and analyse how writers use linguistic and structural devices to achieve their effects.

Section B: Writing

A04:

• communicate effectively and imaginatively, adapting form, tone and register of writing for specific purposes and audiences

AO5:

• write clearly, using a range of vocabulary and sentence structures, with appropriate paragraphing and accurate spelling, grammar and punctuation.

It was clear that candidates were all able to respond to the poem from the Anthology in the examination, and that most had studied it before. Some candidates had been taught the context of and background to the poem and the writer.

Throughout the qualification, overall candidates had been prepared well and all had, at different levels, developed the skills required to answer the questions.

It was also clear that candidates used what they had studied in their reading to feed into their imaginative writing, which inspired them. As the specification identifies, the main aims for our candidates in this paper are:

- read critically and use knowledge gained from wide reading to inform and improve their own writing
- write effectively and coherently using Standard English appropriately
- use grammar correctly, punctuate and spell accurately acquire and apply a wide vocabulary alongside knowledge and understanding of grammatical terminology, and linguistic conventions for reading, writing and spoken language.

Candidates had, pleasingly, been given the opportunity to practise their writing techniques and planning and proofreading skills.

The responses of candidates had some positive features. Examiners were impressed by:

- evidence that many candidates had understood the content of and ideas in the poem
- the successful, integrated use of the bullet points within the question
- coverage of the assessment objectives required for this paper
- the range of vocabulary for AO5
- writing that showed creative ideas and suitable tone, style and register for audience and purpose.

Less successful responses:

- demonstrated a lack of knowledge of the poem and/or lack of awareness of the ideas in the poem relevant to the question
- failed to reference the question, with candidates simply writing something about the poem or writer very broadly
- rigidly followed the bullet points in the question so that language and structure points were almost an 'add-on' at the end
- had an insecure grasp of language and structure with a lack of understanding of how language and structure were used, feature-spotting or confusion of terms
- had limited comment on language and structure and relied heavily on description of the poem or paraphrasing of it for Question 1
- failed to support points using appropriate textual evidence or used over-long quotations
- lacked organisation in their writing
- lacked accurate spelling and secure control of punctuation and grammar.

It was clear that candidates had been able to find at least some information about the idea of pride in the poem and could comment on language and structural features. Imaginative writing was often interesting, engaging and enthusiastic and had a clear sense of purpose and audience in the voice and ideas used.

Question 1

AO1

The first two bullet points in the mark scheme relate to AO1 - read and understand a variety of texts, selecting and interpreting information, ideas and perspectives. The level of understanding of the text from the Anthology is assessed in the first bullet point, and the selection and interpretation of information, ideas and perspectives in the text in the second bullet point. Some candidates followed preprepared ideas, for example discussion of racism, using the poem more as a starting point to discuss issues with society. Examiners felt that the vast majority of candidates were able to make valid references and interpret the idea contained.

At the very basic level candidates tended to comment very broadly on what was being said in the poem. They were able to show some understanding of the poem, but the understanding and focus was uneven (for example, some candidates at this level thought that the writer was proud of being wealthy as she had 'oil wells'). There was often limited selection and interpretation of information and ideas. Lower end responses could not get beyond quotation plus general comment such as 'this shows she won't be defeated' for every stanza.

Candidates at the Grade 4 borderline were at least able to identify some of the key ideas in the poem linked to pride, although at this borderline grade there was often an imbalance where the focus was on identifying basic/valid ideas and information from the poem that had some connection to pride (for example, the narrator being proud of 'her looks') rather than being appropriate, apt or persuasive for the higher levels. For example, candidates at this borderline grade often had not considered more than broad ideas. There was a lack of 'drilling down' into the poem to examine the more nuanced ideas that were considered by candidates achieving higher marks.

Candidates at borderline Grade 7 were more direct in approach, as they were able to select the relevant ideas from the poem linked to pride in herself and her background in a detailed but succinct manner. Candidates at this borderline tended to cover the full poem and both the narrator's pride in herself and her background and offered detailed points. At the higher levels examiners felt that that 'It was good to see the personal response of candidates shining through'. Some interesting ideas were:

- 'A sense of admiration for the poet is strengthened as she rises despite all of this as she showcases her pride "I dance as..."
- 'Laughing at her oppressors and the absurdity of their low moral values'
- "I'll rise' to 'I rise' perhaps was A's way of structurally breaking the bonds of her mapped out life to her newfound freedom'
- 'Micro-aggressions have a devastating effect'
- 'She turns her weaknesses into strength and mocks the people with all the flaws they saw in her'
- 'She is not a person who seeks happiness in wealth but in freedom.'

AO2

The third bullet point in the mark scheme relates to AO2 - understand and analyse how writers use linguistic and structural devices to achieve their effects. There needs to be understanding of the language and structure used in the text, and the level of skill is also a discriminator. Explain is a mid-level skill, comment a lower level skill and explore/analyse higher-level skills, which gives candidates opportunities to achieve across the range.

At the lowest levels candidates often made reference to language and structure as a brief add-on at the end of the answer. Candidates here often identified and named devices, but did not demonstrate the skill or understanding to discuss their use, and did not link these to the question. At this level responses were characterised by writing without any explanations - candidates here were good at finding both language and structure features, but not as confident at explaining them. The responses were much more at a descriptive level, with limited and underdeveloped evidence.

Candidates at the Grade 4 borderline were at least commenting on both language and structure. At this borderline grade candidates were commenting on and explaining language and structure, with appropriate and relevant references. Candidates at Grade 4 borderline were able to pick out features in the poem, but often there was little developed explanation of the effect of these features. The majority at the borderline grade were able to comment clearly on, for example, direct address, rhetorical questions, repetition, simile and metaphor, short sentences. Some explanations at this borderline grade were non-specific and unrelated to the question: 'The writer uses language and structure to engage the reader.'

Candidates at the Grade 7 borderline were commenting on both language and structure consistently, confidently and succinctly. At this borderline grade candidates were exploring and analysing language and structure, with detailed and discriminating references. At the higher level candidates were able to explore less obvious features, such as the structural change in the final two stanzas and how the last two are longer to show she has overcome her oppressors, alongside the features of borderline Grade 4. The examples of language and structure used at this borderline grade were much more considered and selected than at borderline Grade 4, showing a perceptive understanding of the viewpoint of the writer and the effect of details selected on the readers, for example references to tone - challenging/mocking/sarcastic. Examiners' comments included:

- 'Various ideas on 'I rise' testimonial style, motivational mantra, chant like tone, self-proclamation, authoritative voice'
- 'Not many used the title, but I liked "the positive uplifting tone of the title but then opens with a confrontational tone". A good example of language and structure in one point without labouring it.'

Some interesting points included juxtaposition between her painful past and her euphoric present and the simile like dust/like air connected to being 'metaphorically lighter'. Similes/metaphors were at higher levels enhanced, for example 'as well as similes she uses a metaphor "I am a black ocean" to show she is no longer just like a force of nature, she is one".

The final bullet point in the mark scheme relates to selection and use of references from the text which has been studied for both AO1 and AO2. This is a very useful discriminator in this question. As previously mentioned, candidates were sometimes unable to consider references that supported different ideas and information (rather than many references which illustrated the same point) where candidates perhaps missed key elements that would have demonstrated apt, persuasive selection of information and ideas.

Example 1 poen talk all about how the writter has rised from all her fear that of the used to have before and was Sourced to and do what she has always wanted to do She has sto stoped by four and she was Somal of what people would say like in the poem she Sound that " Leaving behind nights of terror and fear lise" that means she has always wanted to do Something but has never been able to do it until it point where she said Enough is She decided to mise up. People used to # look down at her but all the Sid " You may write me down in history with your better two test lies. You may trad up in the very dut but still like dast I'll use she has never upseted her self she alway told hor self that she can do it " Does my Jassiness upset you" and always know that she is the best and all way will be the best out of all the people. They all used to abuse here and think she would never read the top. May shoot he with your words, you may He with your Eyes, You may Kill me with your hatefull news but still like six I'll rue Frozeno was anazed by what work she did "Bringing the gifts that ausistors in gave, I am the olvean and the of the Slave I rise I rise

Examiner Comments:

This answer achieves a mark of 1 in Level 1.

The response starts out by describing the idea of fear. This is not guite comment, it is more description, for example 'she was scared of what people would say'. The quotation on the first page, 'leaving behind nights of terror and fear I rise', is not linked to the point being made, 'that means she has always wanted to do something but has never been able to do it...'. The candidate knows that 'People used to look down at her' and makes a comment about how she has been positive and has self-belief. There is a lack of focus on the guestion and linking of understanding to the question.

Very general assumptions are made about the poem, for example 'always knew that she is the best', 'In the end she was at the top and everyone was amazed by what hard work she did', but these are not clearly linked to the guestion or the evidence offered.

There is basic understanding of the text in terms of broad ideas. There is also some, basic, selection of ideas. There is no identification of language and structure. There are references used, but these are limited in use as they do not link to the points being made. The response meets the first, second and fourth bullet points in Level 1, achieving a mark of 3.

Example 2

Started Roca people Selieved

Examiner Comments:

This answer opens with some comment on how the narrator/writer feels hope that she will 'rise again' and there is attempt at comment on the question 'did you want to see me broken?', 'That feeling of someone seeing her falling down was what made her thought of rising again'. There is no real clear link between this point and the evidence. The points made about how she felt pride in herself because of her 'sexiness' and how 'bright her life can be' show some understanding of the text. The comment on the use of 'like dust' shows some understanding of the use of language (although this is not developed). The focus on structure then becomes more descriptive, and lacks evidence to support the points about 'painful background', 'she was angry', and how she 'knew she was going to rise again'.

There is 'some understanding of the text' here, Level 2. The selection and interpretation of information is valid, but there is very little focus on the directed question. It is always stressed in the Examiner's Report that candidates should answer the question set, not tell us everything they have been taught about a text.

There is some very brief comment on language and this shows a 'light touch' understanding. There is some implied understanding in the comment on structure, but there is work to be done by us to see that. The use of references is valid at the start and then limited.

The candidate meets the first bullet point in Level 2 (just more than basic, however). The second bullet is met in Level 1, but not quite as securely into Level 2. The third bullet, AO2, is met in Level 1 with a touch of Level 2 at the start. The final bullet point is only just met in Level 2 - references are valid, but not developed or linked to the points/question. A mark around the lower end of Level 2 is appropriate here.

Example 3

Maya Angelou presents the idea of being proud in Still I Rise by use of different language techniques.

'Still I Rise' the heading itself tells us that despite Angelou facing challenges, she will rise.

'You may write down in history' Angelou starts by using second person persona to engage the reader in the poem. The first line is directed to Maya's oppressor with your bitter, twisted lies'

'You may trad me in the very dirt' Angelou still talks to the appressor who wants to put her down but her response was completely different.

'But still, like dust, I'll rise' Angelou uses simile 'like dust' to inform her appressor that as light as the dust is, she is compared to that so she'll rise easily.

'Does my sassiness upset you? Why are you beset with gloom?'

Maya Angelou starts asking the appressor direct questions. The use of question marks is directed to the appressor. This tells us that Maya isn't at all agraid of the oppressor rather confident in provoking them. 'Cause I walk like I've got oil wells, pumping in my living room. Hence. Angelou uses the pronoun "1" to describe her walking style. Furthermore she uses simile to compare her walk like ail wells. Here Angelou engages the reader and informs us that Mayo's confidence cames from her wealth 'pumping in my living room.' shows Mayo's possessions. "Just like moon and like suns' Angelou uses simile to compare herself with- the moon and suns. This tells the readers that Maya is proud and confident just like the brightness of the moon and sun. Similarly, she compares herself with nature. With the certainty of tides. Just like hopes springing high ' Angelou is certain of her a success M with the artainty of tides and hopes opringing high. 'Still I'll rise'. Angelou is very consident that no matter what happens and what comes her way, she still says is confidently and loudly 'Still I'll rise' Did you want to see me broken? Bowed head and lowered eyes? Shoulders falling down like teardrops, Weakened by my soulful cries. The poet uses rhetorical questions to the oppressor asking him about what kind of expectation and results he expected after he oppressed Maya Angelou uses similes to emphasize on the oppressor's expectations. She compares her shoulders like teardrops. But all in all, Maya Still manages to Stand straight up. Does my haughtiness offend you? Don't you take it awful hard Cause I Laugh like I've got gold mines, Diggin'in my own backyard ' Angelou still continues to offend and provoke the appressor. Additionally, Angelou describes her lough to like gold mines. This is use of simile which engages the reader more on it Angelou still informs the reader that her confidence and pride comes from her wealth 'gold mines'. She also uses alliteration of 'g' in 'got gold' to create a sense of rhyme. 'Diggir' in my own backgard' shows possession. You may shoot me with your words, You may cut me with your eyes You may kill me with your hatefulness, But still, like air, I'll rise Furthermore, Angelou uses repetition and second person persona You may to engage the reader more on the message as if it is meant for her. She uses anaphora to engage the reader Expectedly, Angelou continues to compare herself to nature `like air' This tells the reader how easily it is for to rise and shows how proud she is because of this. "Does my sexiness upset you? Does it come as a surprise That I dance like I've got diamonds At the meeting of my thighs?" Moreover, Angelou starts to show feminism 'sexiness' and continues to shoot questions at the oppressor. She continues to inform the reader that her confidence and pride comes from the her wealth 'I've got diamonds' and continues to show reminism 'my thighs?'

Out of the huts of history's shame Irise

Up from a past that's rooted in pain I rise

Furthermore. Angelou starts to dig in her past. The shame and pain that she went through she still rises. Angelou engages the reader in her past and leaves them to dwell on how much she suffered.

'I'm a black ocean, leaping and wide' Welling and Swelling I bear in the tide'

In the first stanzas i Angelou used similes to compare herself to nature and wealth. As we reach here, Angelou shifts to using metaphors 'I'm a black ocean' This personaptes show racism and that Angelou is still proud of her colour. She uses present continuous tense to describe how much she can bear the appressor 'welling and swelling'

Examiner Comments:

This is a response that shows generally sound understanding of the poem and an implicit link to the question. The response shows an awareness of the narrator and her oppressor, the confidence and lack of fear (which is, in parts, linked to pride), the expectations the oppressor has and how the narrator tries to 'offend and provoke'. Some ideas are not secure in their link to the question or the evidence offered, and there is some confusion in understanding, for example confidence coming from 'wealth' and 'possession'. The idea of femininity needs to be developed and linked to the sense of pride more clearly, as does the sense of suffering in the past and how she is 'proud of her colour'. Selection and interpretation of information and ideas is valid, but lacks development (Level 2), particularly in relation to the question.

For AO2 there is some clear understanding and explanation of language and structure techniques (the similes, the use of direct questions, rhetorical question, repetition and second person), but also some feature-spotting (use of the pronoun 'I', comparisons to nature, alliteration, anaphora, present continuous tense). While there is some attempt to explain some language and structure features, some are not fully understood (the symbols of wealth, for example), and some are noted but not explained or understood fully. AO2 is Level 2/3.

Overall there is some sound understanding of the text (Level 2/3), appropriate and relevant selection (Level 3), some clear understanding and explanation of language and structure (some comment which is more Level 2) and appropriate references (although these are not always fully clear and it is not always evident that they apply to the points being made). The response meets all of Level 2, and the clear and sound touches do move it securely into Level 3 with 15.

Example 4

The a writer to really proud of heroelf. The writer brings and the idea of bring proud by being proud about herefy. The writer is proud of how who wolk with her head apright and unwarried about life. This we are in the accord paragraph line 3 and 4 'Cause I walk like I've got oil wells pumping in my living room. One is proud of her walking after and the would like the whole world to know.

Also in paragraph 5 the writer talks about her happiness.

'Cause I laugh like I've got gold miner Diggin' in my own back yard. This whom how genuinely happy who is with her life. One is no caturied prople would think who own gold miner. Also in the writer is proud the is leading a happy life.

In paragraph 7, the writer talks about her versiners. The writer already about a work already.

know the is crexy and that absolutely no one can tell her otherwise. The auks further "Does it come as a purprise That I dence like live got diamond It the meeting of my thighs."

The is proud of her ceximers and proud of her dencing which is also proud of her femininity and the company it to diamonds.

The witer came from a poor humble background. The writer come from «uffering and most part of her life who was and and lived in four but who is now proud of horself and who days the will rise from it. The is ground that the can thelly be free from suffering In the last personals the with says "Leaving behind nights of terror and four I rise Int an daybrak that's wondrougly clear. This chow that the is proud to pull through from craffering and dering able to use and live a bright life. The further goes on and care Bringing the gift that my encentry gave, I am the dream and the hope of the clave" One is provid that the brought change in her community and that the can be able to help others by freeing then and being their hope from Clavery and porenty. The niter talk about how the will rise from every city aton that comes to her. The is proud and the know the will pull through and nothing can cotop her. In every paragraph the mention " I rise ". The manage to get back on her geet and are the light in every vituation. The writer has wed language and atmoture. The writer has wed repetition to brin, out empheric. The writer has uprated "I rice" in every paragraph throughout the poem to whow that the will get through everything the goed through. her also used amboliartion for example in perspect one one one says " But will like durt, I'll rise. She comperes her up from tough intraction part like don't the The writer has used forestradowing. In the last paragraph " I am the dream and the hope of the clave. that whe is the partner, who is the hope of many, who one who will wrone them. her wed winites. In the forth paragraph the shoulders falling down like teardaps. The falling down of whoulder is being compared to the falling down of texts how extreme the chandless have fallen. The wither is proud of how tough and persevering whe can be. In the fruit peragraph who days " You may took me very dirt but utill like dut I'll rise. The know trolled badly and put in wall, and situation whe etill get above it victorious.

Examiner Comments:

This response meets all of Level 3. The focus on the question is clear from the outset, for example the point made about how she walks is clearly made. The point about happiness shows clear selection and is appropriate to the point being made (it also shows a clear thought process). The paragraph on background could be more 'rooted' in the text, but there is some explanation by the time we get to being 'free from suffering' (and there is clear focus on the question). The end of that paragraph is explaining, although the idea of bringing about change could be more securely evidenced/explained.

For AO2 the candidate references the use of questions, for example 'She goes ahead to ask' and 'She asks further'. The explanation of the effects of these is clear. The repetition of 'I rise' is explained, as is symbolism and use of similes. The explanation of foreshadowing is not as clear, although there is implied understanding. The language and structure points are clear, but not always explained in terms of connection to the directed question. AO2 is met at the lower end of Level 3.

There is sound understanding of the text (Level 3). This was quite sustained, but, given that there was not enough security in some of the points in terms of link to the evidence, it does not move into Level 4. There is appropriate and relevant selection (Level 3), mostly clear understanding and explanation of language and structure and appropriate references (although these are not always relevant to the question, so not moving into Level 4). On balance, Level 3 is fully met.

Angelou piesents her confidence as can be seen in the quotation, "Does my sassiness upset you?" The use of ringtorical question indicates herconfidence and she has no fear in facing the oppresser or the authority. The another quotation to support is, "Does my haughtiness offend you?" This suggests her arrogance and confidence to fight for her people and herself, also, it indicates that she will not be under the control anymore. In addition, the size further show her confidence in sexuality as she said, "Does my sexiness upset you?" and "That I dance like I'm got diamends II at the meeting of my thighs?" These quotations convey to her confidence and also to the empower women by supporting feminism. Angelou further shows her resilience as can be seen in the quotation, "I rise".

The use of repetition suggests that and emphasizes her power and her resilience.

Angelou also show the pride in her background, by can be seen in the quotation, I'm a black ocean, leaping and wide. "The use of metaphan indicates that all of her power, her confidence and her restlience one come from her background as black people. It suggests that being black makes the becomes powerful since the word "ocean" conveys the feeling of being powerful and feeling of authority. Moreover, Amgelou shows her prior in her boxchiground by referring to her ancestor, on can be seen In the quotation, Bringing the gift that one my ancestor gove." This indicates that the thing that build her up is her ancestor, is to be black people, which emphasises that the ceason of being resilience, powerful and confident of her is because the gift from her ancestor; to be black people. Angelow then explain that from the gift from her ancestor makes she become a diream of slave, as can be supported by the quotation, "I am the dream and the hope of the slave." This suggests her possion # to bring the freedom to her people, which were describe as slove in the quotation. This shows her price in her background since She can be their hope and dream because of what the oncestor gave her.

Throughout the poem, Angelou uses another to emphasises her power and her resilience, as can be seen in the quotation, "You may shoot me with your words." If "You may cut me with your words." If "You may cut me with your eyes." I' "You may hill me with your hatefulness." The maphora of "You may" presents the cold-blooded of the authority and shows that she won't be the slave anymore. The violent verbs, "shoot", "out" and "Will" suggest that how the authority treats her and her people, which and highlight their cruelty. Angelou also use metorical questions throughout the poen, as an example. "Did you want to see me torphen?" This conveys the teeling of challenged as she shows how the authority likes to her people, but they will not be like what they want again. The rectorical questions in the poem suggest her arrogance and confidence to face the authority. The repetition of "I'll rise" and "I rise" suggest the resilience and being more powerful, and also suggest the sense of going towards a brighter future. However, throughout the poem. Angelou change from "I'll rise" to "I nic" at the end of the poem. Therefore, this nay cannote that she is overcomming all those pain and terror in the past and ready for the better future. Furthernore, the rhyme at the end of some line in the poem, for example, "tides" II "high", "eves" II "cries" and "hara II "yard! These thyre create kind of feeling of a song that can be used to sing to inspire people to fight for their right, to stand for their freedom and may use to celebrate their victory after the long fight.

Examiner Comments:

This response opens with some bold statements about confidence, lack of fear, arrogance, empowerment of women, power and resilience. This is a confident opening, although initially we are left wondering 'how?' in some places in that first section, and hoping this will become clearer, especially with more explicit connection to pride, the focus of the question. Rhetorical questions and repetition are understood and explained clearly on the first page.

The first section on the second page starts with pride coming from the narrator's background, and this section, while not the most clearly expressed, does have some detail and thought in how the metaphor is used and how the references identified are used to show passion, hope and confidence. In the next paragraph the reference to anaphora is not completely convincing in its explanation ("You may" presents the cold-blooded of the authority"), but the use of violent verbs is clearly explained, if not connected to the question. The candidate then moves back to some rhetorical questions and repetition and there is, again, some thoughtful explanation here, perhaps some 'light touch' exploration. The final language point about rhyme is interesting, although again not fully within the context of the question.

This is a mixed response: there is definitely sound understanding (Level 3), and it is quite sustained (Level 4) - in some places it could just be more connected to the question. The selection and interpretation of information and ideas is appropriate and quite detailed (if not always clearly expressed). It supports the points being made (sometimes more is made of the link to the points than is obvious).

For AO2 there is definite clear understanding and explanation of language and structure and how these are used by writers to achieve effects. In a couple of cases there is a feeling that there are some touches of quite thorough understanding, but this is not explored enough. The selection of references is appropriate and is relevant to the points being made. Bullet point 1 of the mark scheme is met in Level 3/4: there is definitely sound and some sense of sustained understanding of the poem. Bullet point 2 is also met in Level 3, and there are occasional touches of detail (Level 4), although not fully evident or clear in places. AO2 is met in Level 3, and there is potential for exploration (it felt like the final point showed the candidate becoming more confident in detail). The references are quite detailed, but not always supportive of the points being made, so a mixture of Level 3 and 4 here. On balance, and using the 'best-fit' principle, a mark of 20 just into Level 4 reflects the touches of Level 4 evident here.

Example 6

The writer Haya Angelou, presents the Lea of being proud

In this poem in several ways.

The initial way 'proudness' is present in this poem is through the narrator's confidence. The writer theathy mins to defend therethe asks the audience readers Does my sassiness upset you? This shows that she is careless about the hate comments

she has been getting because she directly asks if her happiness and her true self offends * anyone. This can also suggests that no matter what other people say, she will still continue on the living her best life as thereth who she is because she will not be upset the form by those hateful comments.

The use of vinetorical questions ending with the provour 'you' is targeted to the westerners who had been criticising her appearance as a plus-size Arrican - American as it she is meching them bock for being mad about other people's confidence. The writers intension sould have been to spread awavevess of thema loving yourself to the readers, especially assican blacks who had always been micked because of their davice skinterine. Also, the writer the is comparing herself dancing "like I've (she) got and wines diamonds at the untering of her thigh." This so also shows that she has a lot of body positivity because one compares become to hex 'big thigh' and thigh gaps to 'diamond' which is valuable and expensive. So, this can also demonstrate more the sense of being ground of horself writer's gride as an African - American woman The for Futhermore, the writer presents her proudness of her African - American vacleground despite the nurtful past of black people during slavery era The writer to She deduces "You may shoot me with your words," "cut me with your eyes", and " will me with your votefullness" This suggests about the suffering wack people have faced in the past and in their exercising life because the the writer uses violent veros to present 211 forms of negativities black people face. The "words" was to commotes to mocking "eyes" can be interpret as insultions from whites. and "hatefullness" is all about discrimination. The test ending words represent the struggles in the blacks in the present days while "shoot", "cut" and "kill" represents the tormenting post their "ancestors" have been through when they were under 'white suprevnocy". The use of ona phono 'you may "at the beginning of those a lines suggests that the writer does not core what the westerness are doing towards her but one thing that she will defenitely do is that "like air, Eshe'll I'll vise." The For Angelou's Intension is It shows eleanly present It is clear that Angelow's intendicy is to give voice to all the African - American people and with pay respect to those who sacri lost their lives and shows ner 'pride' of herself being black suggesting and representing all the other black people and secomes a role model for them. The writer uses language echnique to prevoke the sense of never giving up. Sne said says, " But still like dust, I'll rise." This shows that she is not well or universite at all because no matter what happens to her she will always come back up. The word "dust" connotes to the thack African - Americans being and a small seem as ignored and seen 25 dirty and have no value but the ext these despite 'dusts' bring small (having no so power), it can vise up the work the certainty of traces "just like works and suns" which rises up everysingle day, giving the sense of hope for the biscle community to regain their confidence and 'rise' to Pight for their rights

The poem is filled with repetitions, as pecially at the ending stanza where "refrain" is used to create the sense of writy in the black community.

The use of the word "I rise" creates the sense of anarting and the evoleting of power and confidence.

The Enjampment were is used to emphasize an the word "rise" to show that there is nothing to be started off and that with the voice of everyone, they will rise back to where they belong.

In conclusion,

From this poem, Angelow used many techniques to present "price" for all Africans.

Examiner Comments:

This response opens with a general introduction which is clearly referencing the question. Pride is connected with confidence on the first page, and the explanation is evident, with a feeling that the candidate is striving to explore. There is lack of connection to the text until the rhetorical questions and pronoun use are mentioned, and the comment on 'criticising her appearance as a plus-size African-American' is not clearly 'rooted' in the poem. However, the further exploration on the second page and the detail about the writer's intentions is more connected to the text, and the body positivity is an interesting interpretation that serves to persuade us more of the point. The connection to pride is highlighted, linking back to the question.

The second half of the second page has evidence of thorough exploration and some touches of quite perceptive ideas, illustrated with reference to quotations showing suffering, violent verbs and some specific word-level analysis. While this is not quite secure in places, there is a definite sense of an attempt to persuade the reader of their understanding. It is important to note that the mark scheme asks for 'references', not specifically 'quotations', and there is definite reference to the text throughout. Anaphora is explored, and the candidate does attempt to offer perceptive points which are demonstrating a personal response to context but are also still linked to the question. This is also seen in the exploration of the use of 'dust', which is thoughtful and quite perceptive. By this point we are convinced as a reader that there is sustained understanding of the text. Repetition to create a feeling of unity is interesting, and the candidate really tries to persuade us of their point.

This response meets the first bullet point in Level 4/5. The candidate definitely shows sustained understanding of the poem and it is perceptive in parts. The selection and interpretation of ideas and information is appropriate, detailed and fully supports the points being made (Level 4). There are also elements of persuasive, apt selection (Level 5). For AO2 there is a mixture of a few parts of thorough exploration but there is also some perceptive analysis of language and structure (Level 4/5). The selection of references is detailed, appropriate and supports (mostly fully) the points being made (Level 4). They do attempt to clarify the points being made (Level 5). Level 4 is met, and there is enough evidence of Level 5 achievement to move this to the lower end of Level 5 with 27.

Writing

Examiners felt that 'All questions were tackled enthusiastically by candidates. The titles were easily accessible to all yet gave scope for the better candidates to fly.'

At the lowest grade boundary candidates tended to offer a basic response. They always had straightforward use of tone, style and register, with audience and purpose not always clear. At this level candidates tended to express but not always connect ideas and information, with limited use of structural and grammatical features and paragraphing. Pleasingly, there were few responses that only achieved Level 1 and where they did this was mostly because these candidates hardly wrote anything, offering a basic response, or the sentences did not make sense at all.

At the Grade 4 borderline candidates tended to at least have straightforward and at best appropriate use of tone, style and register, selecting material and stylistic or rhetorical devices to suit audience and purpose. At this borderline level candidates tended to connect, but not always develop, ideas and information, with some structural and grammatical features and paragraphing. There was a tendency in the majority of responses marked at this borderline grade to set out a stronger description in the start and then focus more on plot towards the end where planning had let the candidates down. In some cases, the writing lacked development to move higher into the mark scheme for AO4. At this borderline grade the use of vocabulary and syntax tended to be appropriate but repetitive and at times limited to vague simile/metaphor, use of short sentences, questions and exclamations for effect. The level of AO6 at this borderline was appropriate but overall formulaic, where it appeared that candidates had been advised to include plenty of adjectives or similes in their writing and felt the need to include them at all times.

In the best responses, candidates tended to have subtle use of tone, style and register, managing ideas and stylistic or rhetorical devices to suit audience and purpose. At this borderline level candidates tended to manage, but not always manipulate, ideas and information, with a range of structural and grammatical features and paragraphing. Responses at this level had some creative ideas and conscious, successful crafting. The Grade 7 boundary tended to have some selective vocabulary used for specific effect rather than just to demonstrate knowledge of particular multi-syllabic words.

The assessment objectives for these tasks effectively discriminated the quality of responses. Advice to centres would be to encourage candidates to avoid thinking they need to write a whole novel or even short extract in the time available - they need to have a clear organisation and direction in mind, and to perhaps not 'overseason' the pieces with vocabulary and syntax.

The main areas that discriminated these responses were:

 whether candidates could meet both parts of the first part of bullet one in the mark scheme for AO5 - for example they often expressed ideas to achieve in Level 2, but these ideas lacked the order for the second part of that bullet. In Level 3, they may have connected ideas but not developed them.

- the success of tone, style and register in AO4.
- the spelling of basic vocabulary in AO5.
- the accuracy of punctuation and use of varied punctuation in AO5.
- the use of a range of sentence structures for AO5.

Varying sentence structure and punctuation were areas centres had focussed on: varying the way sentences begin; more use of subordinate clauses to begin complex sentences; effective use of one-word sentences and one-sentence paragraphs to demonstrate conscious crafting. Some candidates attempted to use ambitious vocabulary while some seemed to steer away from ambitious vocabulary in order to maintain accuracy. A key message to centres is to focus on crafting and organisation whatever the nature of the task. This was a common weakness running through all but the very best answers. The more 'pedestrian' answers were formulaic, showing a lack of organisation and often demonstrated a lack of planning and direction. Be ambitious in the structure, vocabulary and range of ideas and try to be creative and original. There was some excellent description and evidence of crafting at all levels.

In terms of register it was clear that the majority of the candidates knew how to write an imaginative piece, however there were a few that produced responses more like an essay. Examiners noted that lack of control could let candidates down and that control of language was also a problem at times.

Some comments from examiners include:

- 'Similes were as popular as ever: some were quite original and imaginative; others a little cliched or heavy-handed'
- 'Noticed a lot of "gonna" creeping in and a less formal tone.'
- 'Punctuation of dialogue is not secure even in better resposnes.'
- 'Most had a beginning, middle and end.'
- 'Few responses were unfinished.'

Question 2: Write about a time when you, or someone you know, felt proud.

Examiners noted a wide range of responses being offered which allowed the full range of marks to be applied, since all candidates were able to offer ideas about a time that they or someone else felt proud.

A range of reasons for feeling pride was offered, for example examination or other academic success, sporting successes, pride in family. Most responses tried to hook the reader but at the lower end of the mark scheme responses were a little formulaic, especially the sporting ones - for example too much time spent setting the scene, having breakfast, getting to the ground and then the proud moment was 'tacked on' at the end. Most did try and build up the narrative. Some had touches of description, while others introduced a bit of tension (for example where the proud moment was overcoming another team/competitor). There was some pride in speaking to someone the narrator was romantically interested in, building up to speaking to the person. Some were positive about themselves by standing up to bullies, overcoming a fear and many wanted to make their parents proud.

Example 1

It wa	5	bright	Sun	ny	morning	- W	hen M	lom my
all-	uless	neatly.	She q	ant 1	ell M	le	anyming	Ja1
		funished
		everyo
		tion. 9
and	ask	what	was	going	on,	e very	one 19	nonecl
Me I	ncludina	Mg	dearly	belo	ved s	sister	, who
Was	verg	fond	of.
Mom	told	15	to go	0 10	the	2cc	ır Qn	d wart
for	them	there,	we o	all ad	nered	.to	that c	and wer
In 1	he co	ac it	ried	to	dsk .	the m	again	the
Same	quest	ion, but	none	of the	m lei	nded	me a	ear, they ued to
		later	Some	hing	Struc	K	Mq Mi	nd 1
Someti	IV16
Some to		ely fo

realised to that same month. Thoughts started flowing on mind, was the silence because of that 1 brushed off those thoughts and, told myself that I am overthinking. We reached for our destination. "Oh we were going ato a hotel," which is very rare of our family. Dad told us to order what We want. I was so flabagasted, because it's Very rare of My father, to take us out and ask us to order what we want. I as a food and lover I went for something Very sophisticated, Mouth watering, dish, everyone Stared of me after I was done ordering, five Minutes later Our meals arrived, I was as happy as king to see that meal infront of me. Immediatly i started Pating forgeting 10 say a word of prayer. Where 15 your table manners son, mom asked. My opologies, I rephed, we $ recited a word of Prager and started feasting on Dur Meals. When we done, the waster come and cleared. the table, Dad paid the bills, and we were expecting to leave, and go back home. Dad instructed us to sit down, and he staded that he had an anouncement to make. I was left wondering wheel is this announce-ment that we are being brought to the hotel Instead of just staying at home. Moments later, Dad started, talking we all lend him an eng "He said," you are all wondering why I brought you have today. "I have this one special announcement that I have to make It involves one of you, Blex I am proud of you for passing your 0-level exams I was left at new and did not believe that It's actually me that dad had montioned, I was so exited that words could not describe.

I had passed with flying colors.

Examiner Comments:

This response achieves marks of 8+5 (13 in total). In this response there is evidence of full Level 2 achievement in AO4, and the candidate just moves into Level 3. The response communicates in a broadly appropriate way, with some appropriate ideas (Level 3). There is some grasp of the purpose and the intended reader, and the use of form, tone and register is a mixture of straightforward and appropriate (not always securely 'appropriate').

In AO5 the candidate just moves into Level 3 using the 'best-fit' principle. They offer some varied vocabulary spelt with accuracy, for example adhered (this could be considered to be quite 'extensive', but it is important to remember that credit is for extensive vocabulary used strategically, rather than used to demonstrate knowledge of different words), completely, overthinking, destination, sophisticated, announcement (although this is not spelt accurately throughout). There are, however, errors in some other spellings, and the grasp of verb tenses and use of articles is not secure enough to demonstrate control. There is an attempt to adapt sentence structures, for example short sentences and speech, but the style can be quite repetitive.

Example 2

This is	a story about a time when my friends and I fell provd
It was	during our junior years of highschool Every year, to year q's	compete in a trash fashion show for art class.
	competition the year dis must create an outfit (or two) recycled materials and it must be worn by models of their cho
The year	er 9's go all and, using their creativity to make the much outfits, no one wants to be bosic.
My free beart.	nds and I chose to go with the theme of beauty and the
-	my friends and I were hope riders, so we decided to use horse gs as our main material. We used chicken wire as a from
-	dress and held everything together with tape. For the we used condboard bases to make his animal-like feet and have
With sur	in few materials, we made an ap impressive pair of outfits.
	d leftoner plastic to add extra details and accessories.
The final	products were booktiful.
At the	time, Ed Sheeron had just relocated "dancing "perfect",
	e thought matched our theme perfectly.
We ch	preographed a short dance for our models to perform at the
	-

and of the run way, making sure to include the beast's awknowed first dance from the movie. Looking at our peer's outfits, it was no doubt that competition was The model's performance on the runway would also earn us points, so outfits had to be practical. The night of the fashion show finally arrived, the weeks after He stort of the project. Freyers was nervous and excited. There was also frustration, of course, when it come to patting dressing the models, m After each group saw their models on the runway, they were seated By the end of the show, no one had any idea of the top who made it to the top three, thay were all so good. The results here were then announced, bochwards from third place, To say we were surprised that we come out fast, is an under understabement. There was screening accompanied with tears jey. All the extra hours of hardwork and stress was worth it. I was so proud of my team for pulling it off. To this day, we still speak about that competition and how much fun it was working together.

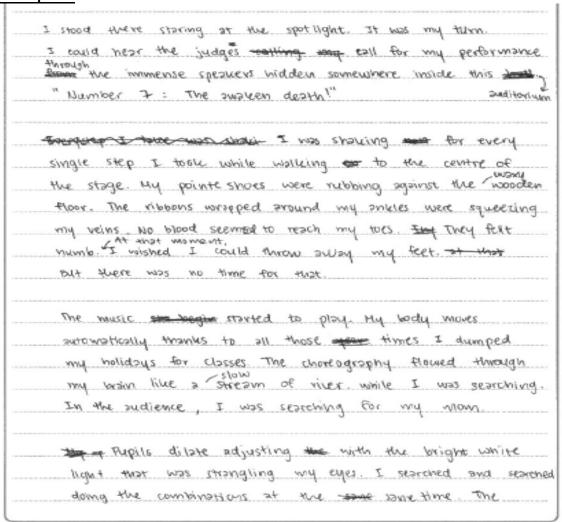

Examiner Comments:

This is a secure example of Level 3 achievement. The response communicates clearly the idea of the competition and the different elements of it, and their feelings on the night. The preparation for the competition is quite simply organised and quite straightforward in tone, but the stages are clear: the need to use recycled materials, the theme the team chooses, the materials they use, the finishing touches of music and dance. The build-up of tension is clear, but there is not enough detail to make it effective. For AO4 the response meets Level 3 securely. It communicates clearly, with a clear sense of purpose and understanding of the expectations/requirements of the intended reader. There is appropriate use of form, tone and register. It is secure enough to sit on the border with 11, but not successful enough to move into Level 4.

For AO5 the candidate connects appropriate information and ideas and there is development in the narrator's feelings about the events. Structural and grammatical features and paragraphing make the meaning clear. There is use of varied and quite wide vocabulary, for example completely, recycled, creativity, accessories, choreographed, frustration, understatement with accurate spelling.

The candidate uses accurate and some varied punctuation (speech marks), adapting sentence structures as appropriate. For AO5 the candidate meets Level 3 fully and borders Level 4 with some quite wide, selective vocabulary and some attempt to use sentence structure for effect. While there are parts that are presented in quite a straightforward way, this is a secure piece of writing. A mark of 8 is awarded for AO5.

Example 3

did not evencove. My concentration was lost in the crowd.
And right at that vooment, my brain street shut itself down through I was blocking the river, nothing to could go through I was desperate. In a panic, I was finishing in the six finishing vny grance jette leap. "Without unowing what to do, I handed with my rount foot but tripped.
The emberossing moment of my life. I just world the emberossing moment of my life. I just world the emberossment pushed me that down towards by the ground, unable to get up the world say. I didn't want to get up.
Suddenly I see her. Now was sitting there at the in the 3rd seem row. She did not looked angry more should. I Justice, she looked after unexpectedly provid of me.
Proud'? I thought to myself.
If she is was so proud of me, why weren't I? I should have be proud of myrelf was the most I was the one who spent may as my whole time working on this see thorse
I started to feel my confidence niching back and Adrenating was that flooding my body. It felt as if my sense was improved Every single moves seems to be executed even easier. The tip of my toes that was lifting the weight of my body up for an asabesque can as sense that hive myself the most.
I managed to continue, finishing the whole choreography. I could not be more proud of myself. That more moment of desperation on alage was recalled while I cass standing at the back of the line of the other candidates in fancy costumes made out of every snades of the vain bow.
If was a good experience." I said to myself knowing that I want with won't be able to find another experience being this happy on stage. Yet I was wrong. "The Honourable Mention goes to Number 7! The anaton death!"

"01 my	god" was the only to	Ming I could say.
T reserve	walked to 4	the stage from thinking th
schuəll.	, I cam could have	been provide of muse
Nime.	But it doe didn't	matter toeco because nous

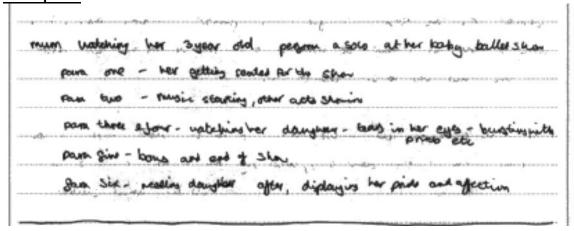

Examiner Comments:

This response has a very descriptive and engaging opening. The candidate is really striving for effect and to create a sense of tension. Suspense is effectively built through the title of piece, 'The Awaken Death', and the feelings of nervousness going towards the stage. The feelings of searching for their mother while performing is effectively presented, although the expression impacts on the effectiveness in places. Some of the descriptions lack subtlety and tend toward cliché, but this does not prevent them from attempting to be effective.

There is a secure realisation of purpose and the expectations and requirements of the intended reader. While sometimes 'heavy-handed' in description, there is effective use of form, tone and register. There is successful communication of a proud moment, and all of Level 4 is met for AO4, a mark of 15.

For AO5 information and ideas are managed, and deliberate effects are created with the use of short sentences, for example. Vocabulary is wide and selective, for example immense, choreography, dilate, concentration, adrenalin, arabesque. There are occasional spelling errors. The candidate uses a range of punctuation for clarity and does manage sentence structures for deliberate effect. There are some lapses in control of syntax and grammar which prevent a higher mark. A mark of 9 credits the ambition here and the quality of the language used, but also reflects that there are some lapses in accuracy.

Example 3

Sophie dance

The tetions fire into the school half next on for an eleviny this is a boadler dance show! I thought to myself, ensured I'm here for one reason and are eason only my body air. Oh how pretty she torned this manife! I reminished about todays say sherroriopers which the manife through this exerctionally, painfully show in Despite how reasons. Spain as seen that was size girls with excitation. This was har first soul a hidow give as I graded the reasons seen to the seen to see the seen to the seen Blasting down my eardness, the time of Nutoracron's excepted through the Speakers in each corner of the hull. Although the Cilling's were miles about my head and the Speakers were fair, for oway from my eas, I my still day degreed. A wome of dapping suddenly broke out when the first act deticately delicately tip-local onto the stage. The brown, mud-line colour floor.

Squared as the Sticky 2-year-olds galloped around. When I had Sophie, it toped int I would be able to ear enough her in a school better than this but bey-ho, what can gar do.

I had no case at all for the other acts of I'm being homet. I waits impatiently through the other acts, building my thumbs and biting my thumbs and biting my three creek. My cheek was raw and bleeding when suddenly, darroness. Immediately agent this darroness come a single light in the shape of a circle onetage on stage. My block was Ownping in the daggering stange. All of a Sudden, a time, mines remove little creature shipped sould into the middle of the circle. My band Suddenly, my hours torshed wheel — it was my banky sophic! I couldn't contain my self: I spee Squadrich burding with piede.

This is my daughter. Daning a solo. On a stage.

A soirunt? No. I amissed those thoughts won I realized I was just about to cry - no state here just pure pinds. Tears gusted outy my eyes are a viscent stream, soaking my for to t-shire below me. I votabled intently by Sophie performed her piece. I know how was and hand she had writted to perform this roadine; she was performing it perfectly. As a matter of Sophie pideis not an uniform Although, or could stoud still on a stage for an how and I would say the perform.

HA051987941

that beling. Everythan single day sophic makes me good as it can the procedent mount in the whole of london; so in the whole world.

Louid not side to scoop by a up and break her to the laggest tested ice-cream known to man. April these demotishing the inecream the size of an elephant, we will snuggle up in bed and natural Harry Potter - har generally. Being proud, although not alien to me, is one of the most amoring Seesings ever thing I could bottle it. It is like a duay so one can get enough of sandship - and I have an endles supply of it.

As the curious draw cheed, I shot up on of my defined Seat and Spiritual to threeit. There she was, my body girl. Another were of pide hit he like a townsom townsom and I hadred to Squarze her. You know when you love her something, some someone so much you just want to squarze them as hard as you pound possibly son? Which so Sophie's rosy cheeks matched her rose pink tutu there was three sizes too big (a chairs supplied.) Even through I was pre-occupied with making sume my car didn't me over the porning time limit. I still make sure to spoid townsom my girl in thiss. 'Can we get ice-cream nummy?' sophic politally asked. 'Please?' My dawing of course, any thing for my body girl. I replied.

Hand in hand we snipped away two towards the icarreeum profesor, humaning the Mahasse 'Nutremover' as he does to what comes about getting a parking birtour man the most important girl in the world was clinging onto my hand.

Examiner Comments:

Interestingly, another proud moment connected to dance. This one takes the perspective of the mother of a child who is performing. There is a feeling of suspense built up during the wait to get a good seat and the excitement of loud music and clapping. The feelings of a proud mother are definitely managed, and there is some evidence of complexity in the insecurity felt about the quality of school, the lack of care for the other acts, the sense of mother's pride being unconditional and the feelings of economic insecurity. These are not as cohesive and managed with the subtlety that they could be for the top marks in Level 5. For AO4, a mark of 17 reflects the successful and also perceptive communication. The task shows a secure sense of audience and purpose, and it is sharply focused on pride. The form, tone and register are effective (Level 4 here). For AO5, there is evidence of complex ideas, but they could be manipulated more for cohesion overall. The vocabulary is wide and selective, for example shenanigans, lurched, tsunami, although there are spelling errors in some words with double consonants and in more ambitious words such as reminisced. There is a range of punctuation: exclamation marks, speech marks, question marks and parenthesis. It could be argued some are over-used. Sentence structures are managed for deliberate effect. A mark of 11 is appropriate for AO5.

Question 3: Write a story with the title 'The Hidden Book'.

This question was completed by fewer candidates than Question 2. Many of these answers followed the pattern of going in a haunted house, finding a hidden book, something negative happening. Responses to this question could tend to be very lengthy, and this occasionally meant that the answers were often very heavy on storytelling but very little crafting. The most successful responses tended to make the hidden book more obscure and were often heavily crafted, showing a wide range of literary devices.

Example 1
The Hidden Book
In an application fit I barged the book show door open, slamming it into the wall behind. A aron had just disclosed that my flowless book "The Vengeunce" had been rejected from every regulable book store. Furious, Scott the shopkeeper glaved intently as I tempestuansly stomped towards the conter like dis raging bull.
What do you want Earl?" He demanded.
"I need to sell my books, can you hap? I stressed perthetically.
As I looked around the store, the empty shelves stored at me pleading to be filled. It was abovers that he would accept my books.
How could be refuse?
Barely attempting to conceal his get glee, he relished explained explaining how implusible it would be to stockpile books that would lead him to declare bankruptcy. It was another noil in the coffin; a failed author, no money and now further rejection. I stuggishly dragged my feet towards the door, providing enough time for a change of mind and a collect a callback. That never happened.

As I produced pushed the door to exit, a fine drizzle of rain sprayed upon my face. Dark clouds stranded as me and the wind win wind placed a chill an body. As I slowly walked ask onto the street, I felt the sin emerge from from the douds. Was this the glimmer of hone lattered need? As I looked back at the shop front I sported a textered bodset near the exit. Full of books labelled with a sign strating "FREE". I went back curious, and throughly affect through the books. Then I saw it. It wasn't bound, Jupic a just a collection of looke leaves at an paper, a doubt maybe? It was like a hidden book. I studied and scanned it. I was dimbroaded. An explosion of warmth diffused all ever over my body, it was autstanding. Who had wathen this masterpiece? On the curling bottom left hand corner, the name Miss Julie walters was scribbled. I looked up and a rainbow had developed:

How easy would it be to publish these drafts under my name? If I termor remained my conscience how complicated could it be. I know it didn't belong to me, immard I know but the proposition great presented to me wass was too sweet an offer to refuse.

Only a couple of weeks later and the "The Victim" was published under my name. Sales were painfully slow at first, Takena every passing day felt like an eternity, but after some positive reviews the books started flying off the shelf with unprecedented numbers in sales. With critical acclaim and commercial access, the next few years years would bring me universal adulation.

Author of the year, The Newbery Medal and the National book award. It was incossent, award efter award but day by day It it grew harder to ignore the burden of quilt weighing on my my shadders. I started having recurring night moves of Miss Julie Wolters suddenly appearing at my home with a low suit and a plethura of reporters ready to expose my crime, as the months went by the nightmores got worse. Several years there had passed and book sales and interest had naturally wouned as did my pero popularity. I failed to write another book, so I decided to buy a bookshop and settle down with enough money to retire and live the next rest of my life confortably. I felt the burden of guilt had exsect eased and I could finally settle down. The Ja The just inging ut my book shop door entry bell would be incressent from 9 to 5. life couldn't be better. Retired and no larger realising books, of curse people occassionally asked for photos and autographs. Atthing would go wrong for me. It was one summers day that I remember well, where I mistuck a carrier requiring a signature for one of my old form. In my embarroument at this misunderstanding, I completly a overlooked the package she had left behind. Several days liter, I recieved a phone call, the old phone dials ringtone had a particularly harrid piercing sound that day. I answered eng confirming that this was indeed Mr Earl Holmes.

A softly spoken female unswered asked IF I had opened the package. As I looked for the package I said to her,
"Just a moment, I am opening it now now."
Then I saw it. It was my book not "The Victim" but "The Then I saw it, hidden beneath the parkaging. It was my book, not "The Victim" but "The Venyeunce". A Porker studied and scanned the cover and som the cuther name It was finally published I studied and su swoned the cover god saw the author name, Miss Julie walters.
The Female then said,
"Vengeunce truly is sweet"
Medding I heard a didick and the phone went dead.
* Centitle Time
* "entitled "The Victim"

Examiner Comments:

This is a competent, high-quality and compelling response which instantly makes the reader want to find out what happens next. The opening is effective, and the whole piece is perceptive and subtle. The task is sharply focused on purpose and the expectations of the intended reader. There is sophisticated use of form, tone and register, with subtle humour and the very well-managed grappling with conscience and sense of morality. The twist at the end of the story is effective and unpredictable. There is full achievement of Level 5, and possibly beyond.

For AO5 the candidate manipulates complex ideas, utilising a range of structural and grammatical features to support coherence and cohesion. An extensive vocabulary is used strategically here, and rare spelling errors do not detract from overall meaning. A range of techniques are employed with subtlety and sophistication, for example dialogue, single line paragraph for effect, sentence starters, and pathetic fallacy. Punctuation is accurate and well-controlled to aid emphasis and precision, and a range of sentence structures is used accurately and selectively to achieve particular effects. AO5 does not have to be perfect to achieve the top mark of Level 5.

Question 4: Look at the images provided. Write a story that begins 'It was like a dream'.

This question, as with Question 3, was attempted by fewer candidates than Question 1. Examiners felt that the images provided proved thought-provoking for candidates and were used creatively. One examiner noted that 'This was also the question where the most varied responses came: everything from kidnapping to vampires.' A whole range of dreams or dream-like experiences was discussed, and one examiner felt that 'compared to question 2 and 3, I would say this was the question completed the best - this felt like the question that candidates had thought about the most before writing and because of that they tended to be more crafted.'

Example 1 It was like a dram. The a Assignment It was like a dream, I an stood there wenting poer for the elevator as bead of sweet a bead of sweet trickled Slowly trickled down his pace, he could not belo believe that he was awake gent now . He was wearing a three piece suit, standard uniform for an organisation like this, and yet, I an still felt out of place as he looked as at the vast lobby full of employers. Ding. The elevators doors opened like the mouth of a shark ready to east it's prey lan had been called in to hand over his assignment for the week by his new eco CEO to hard hand over his assignment for the week. The doors closed entrapping him inside, he observed the floor numbers on the screen of the elevator as it slowly acended, while contemplating how he was going to tell his new boss he did not have the request assignment. I an pictured his bleak future at the company and Sheer we wroth of the CEO. The single bead of sweat had now duplicated into several steams.

floor & sixty six. The doors opened revealing the large many receptition room, it was covered in red and white walls and had a thick black carpet.

lan walked towards the resp receptionist's desk wiping his brow and said, "Hi, I'm Mr. Saint Sear, I'm here to see the CEO"

The people receptionist looked up at his some what dissappringly as it she know his poste and replied, "Take a seat please"

the sost down Sitting Softly on the seat the his hands shook uncontrollably like a man in four this , and his nervousness was palpable and apparent, while he was slowning in his seat.

"Hello there, are you ok?" A soptley spoken voice said, "Would you like some water? She asked.

"No thank you, Sorry I'm a bit nervous because I have to meet a meeting with the new CEO shortly, and I'm terripied!"

Lan responded, remaining Slouched.

"Terrified, what ever for? She inquired as she set down next to lan generally conserved concerned for his well being.

know don't know ip I should tell my boss the touth or a more belivable lie, lan said dishauteningly

"Well I don't know your boss, but I do know that homesty homesty is the pest policy" She said,

She then walked aff leaving land to to contemplate what she just said. From Ten minutes later the people receptionist informed him that see that EEO was ready to see him, as kee lan walked towards the seven foot door he still was was not sure if he should tell the toth? Org lie? "Rotter should I

"Enter." A voice said, lan opened the door, "So what's it going to be a to the toth or a lie?", to lan's surprise It was the tothe woman who spoke to lan early earlier! lan was completely sturned and then started applogising parally proposely.

After a twent ten minute conversation, it was clear that I an was going to keep his job. The CEO wished I an good paye with the understanding that he would complete his assignment next week.

As lan decended in the elevator we sighed with the clipe. What pett like an accepance to up in go up, fett like mere seconds going down.

While walking out of the bis building, his phone started cirging it has an answered the phone and a voice said, "Hello lan moste, it me accord, did you neet your new boss?" he said, "Did you tell the featouth" he asked.

"The toth? Are you kidding? I just told her some nonsense about my dog eat my assignment." I an put the phone down, "Home Honesty is the best polopolicy." I an chuskled.

Examiner Comments:

The story crafted here feels almost like a prepared story which has the introductory line 'tagged on'. There does need to be a sense of sharp focus on the task to achieve Level 5, and we are not convinced that this shows a sense of something being like a dream. There is an engaging opening that draws the reader in, although some issues with expression impact on the effectiveness. The sense of someone feeling nervous and trapped is effectively crafted, and although it may be clear to the reader who the woman is that lan is talking to, it does craft the feeling that he, at the time, has no idea. For AO4 almost all of Level 4 is met with a mark of 14, but the lack of security in the purpose prevents it moving higher.

In AO5 the candidate just moves into Level 4. All of Level 3 is met, and there is some wide and selective vocabulary used, even with some spelling errors, for example organisation, entrapping, contemplating, duplicated, receptionist, slouched, dishearteningly. They are really trying to manage ideas and the meaning is clear. The candidate uses accurate and varied punctuation (question marks, speech marks), and they attempt to adapt sentence structures as appropriate. The effectiveness is sometimes impacted upon by lapses in control. A mark of 8 is achieved for AO5.

Summary

Based on their performance on the paper, candidates are offered the following advice:

- Ensure you have studied the poetry and prose texts in the Anthology fully and use the examination time to remind yourself of the text, not re-read it.
- Read the question carefully and make sure you are answering this question, not telling the examiner what you know about the text you have studied. The selection needs to be relevant to the question you are being asked, in this case the idea of pride.
- For AO2 (language and structure), make sure you are offering ideas about how/ language and structure are used. Many of you were able to give examples, but sometimes you did not offer points about how the examples were used.
- For AO2 try to cover points on both language and structure, commenting on the different techniques that have been used by the writer and how they link to the overall topic of the question, in this case the idea of pride.
- When you are writing, always think about your reader, what information and ideas you want to develop and how you want the reader to react at different parts of your writing; then choose the best words, phrases or techniques available to you to achieve those effects.
- Think carefully about how you will begin to write so that it is engaging for your reader from the very start.
- As you begin to write, know where you will end. This will help you to write in a manner that is cohesive and coherent for your reader.
- Take care throughout with accuracy: spelling, punctuation and grammar
- In writing, focus on crafting and organisation whatever the nature of the task.
- Be ambitious in your structure, vocabulary and range of ideas and try to be creative and original. We are often incredibly impressed with your creativity and ability to write in such an imaginative way in the time given.

Pearson Education Limited. Registered company number 872828 with its registered office at 80 Strand, London, WC2R 0RL, United Kingdom